

Map of the existing rail network in 1857

J.H. Young, "A New Map of the United States of America." From Mitchell's New Traveller's Guide through the United States and the Canadas. Philadelphia: Charles Desilver, 1857. Newberry Library call number: Graff 5271

RAILROAD ROUTES PROPOSED TO
The dotted lines which cross the continent to the west
different routes proposed for the GREAT PACIFIC RAIL-probably at Chicago and extend via the South Pass or
The central route will commence at St. Louis and extend to at Memphis or Vicksburg and will extend via St. Paul to St.
by these routes in connection with the railroads already will be the northern about 2350; the central 2700 and the

SCALE 1:675,000

